Facilitated by:

*“Where there is sorrow,
there is holy ground.”
-Oscar Wilde*

You are warmly invited to join us for a gathering of people co-creating a space where grief is welcomed and can move through, making room for profound compassion as it does.

Please come-as-you-are, with no pressure as to how you express grief or not. Grief does not show up on demand. You may weep, you may be a quiet witness to others, you may be numb, you may be full of outrage, you may be surprised.

However you come, your presence is valued and will be met with respect and never with unsolicited advice. All that is required is your humanity and your willingness to be present and to bear witness with compassion. You are welcome just as you are.

Our time together will include:

Authentic conversation and compassionate listening

Poetry

Grounding and somatic meditation practices.

A weekly discussion and exploration topic

Short writing prompts with invitation to share if desired

Resources to engage with grief outside of group between sessions

‘The Wild Edge of Sorrow’ by Francis Weller:

Highly recommended as a companion to this group work,
not a requirement

We will be walking through the landscape of grief with the vision and offerings of Francis Weller

THE TRUTH IS THAT NONE OF US
ESCAPE LIVING IN THIS WORLD
WITHOUT EXPERIENCING GRIEF.

CREATING SPACES TO GRIEVE IN A CULTURE THAT IS LARGELY DEVOID
OF PUBLIC GRIEVING IS NECESSARY
IF WE ARE TO HEAL AND TRULY
KNOW OUR CAPACITY TO LOVE
WITHIN THE REALITY OF LOSS.

ONE OF THE MOST COMMONLY REPORTED FEELINGS OF THOSE GRIEVING IS A FEELING OF LONELINESS. FEELING SUCH AN IMMENSE WEIGHT OF SADNESS HAS AN ISOLATING EFFECT ON INDIVIDUALS.

WHEN WE PROCESS OUR GRIEF, WE OFTEN BECOME HEALTHIER AND MORE RESILIENT VERSIONS OF OURSELVES.

FINDING A COMMUNITY TO SUPPORT YOU IN THIS WORK IS ESSENTIAL TO CULTIVATING THE CAPACITY TO KEEP OUR HEARTS
OPEN AND PERMEABLE TO BEAUTY AND RESILIENT TO DESPAIR.

THROUGH GRIEF WE ARE ALL ON COMMON GROUND AND CAN ENGAGE WITH THE UNIVERSALITY OF OUR HUMAN EXPERIENCE.
